

We're courting disaster . . . bring justice back into balance.

Judges are not supposed to belong to anyone. They are supposed to be accountable only to the law and the constitution. But recent Wisconsin Supreme Court elections have made it clear that wealthy special interests aim to take control of state courts and bend justice to serve their purposes. We now have publicly financed Supreme Court elections that enable elections, not auctions. Now, we need to make sure judicial candidates are able to fight back against special interest attacks. I support full disclosure of special interest electioneering and requirements that interest groups follow the same campaign contribution limitations that candidates must obey, putting candidates on a level playing field with these groups.

Stop the assault on fair and impartial courts now!
